AT THE CHURCHES YE TERDAY.

Large Congregations and Excellent Sermons on a Pretty Day.

Rev. T. A. Smoot, of Greensboro Female College, filled the pulpit at Centenary again yesterday morning and preached another powerful sermon to a large congregation. His text was: "And this is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent," and his discourse was indeed beautiful. A six-year-old boy, who had listened to the sermon intently, remarked at its close that "Mr. Smoot was good enough for a double bishop."

Dr Frank H. Wood preached at Centenary last night, taking for his text the words, "Lord, what wilt thou have me do?" His sermon was of the good old plain kind, full of truth and logic, and was listened to with interest.

Rev. J. E Thacker, of Alexandria, Va, supplied Dr. Smith's pulpit, at the First Presbyterian church at both morning and evening services yesterday. Large congregations were present at both services and Mr. Thacker's sermons were much enjoyed. His discourse last evening was directed especially to young people. His illustrations were beautiful, his reasoning clear and logical and the sermon fine throughout. Mr. Thacker is an old Greensboro boy and though he has been in the ministry but a few years, is one of the best known young preachers in the church.

No services were held at Grace Methodist Protestant or Westminster Presbyterian churches yesterday, the pastors being absent. Regular services were held at the other churches, large congregations attending all.

AT MUIR'S CHAPEL

Several hundred people attended the camp meeting services at Muir's chapel yesterday. Rev. Dr. L. W. Crawford preached in the morning, addressing a powerful sermon to the throng of people, whose attention he held from beginning to end. Rev. T. H. Pegram, pastor of the church, preached in the afternoon and evening and much interest was manifested. Several parties from the city attended the services.

I. & I. ASSOCIATION.

Annual Meeting Tonight—Mr. Richards to Address the Meeting.

Every business man in Greensboro is invited to attend the annual meeting of the Industrial and Immigration Association at the court house tonight and every one should be present, whether he be a member of the association or not. Mr M. V. Richards, industrial agent for the Southern Railway, who will deliver the address of the evening, has notified the association that he will arrive on the 7:24 train this evening from Washington.

Mr. Richards is one of the highest authorities on industrial progress in the United States and is undoubtedly doing more for the development of the South than any other man in it. He is a fine speaker and an interesting address may be expected President Hunter and Secretary Barber, of the Industrial & Imigration Association will make their annual reports and new officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

COURT OPENS.

One Hundred and Five Petty Cases for a Warm Week's Work.

Guilford court opened this morning, with Judge Geo H. Brown, of Washington, on the bench. The jury was drawn in short order and all the other business of the court moved along in the same way. Judge Brown occupied thirty minutes in his charge to the grand jury, informing them in plain but earnest words of their duty, and exhorting them to perform it. Court convened at 10 o'clock and the first case was called shortly after eleven.

There are 105 cases on the criminal docket, nearly all of them being for larceny or retailing and none of them being of passing interest. It is a petty docket that Solicitor Brooks will rush off this hot week. This is Judge Brown's first official visit to the Guilford bench.

Rare Pleasure.

What is so delightful these lovely nights as to take one's inamorata (sound the broad "a"), and seated behind a pair of dashing steeds, go out to attend the night service at the Muir's chapel camp meeting. Flying past the pretty farm houses, with pale Diana shedding her soft beams over the landscape, one extracts from life one of its most exquisite pleasures. Have you tried it? If you have no inamorata, go alone. You'll enjoy it.

LABORI WAS NOT PRESENT.

Progress of the Great Court Martial at Rennes.

DREYFUS ROSE PALE AND CALM

And Spoke for Five Minutes with Telling Effect—Captain Junck's Points Controverted.

By Cable to the Telegram

Rennes, August 21—The court martial convened early. Labori did not appear. Five witnesses, all anti-Dreyfusites, testified. None of them were important. Col. Picquart arose to contradict one of the witnesses, when Jouaust sneeringly said, "What, again?" The audience hooted and hissed. Jouaust turned red and adjourned court.

TO PROSECUTE MERCIER.

New York, August 21—The Journal's Paris special says information is received upon high authority that Colonel Schneider, an Austrian military attache at Paris, will arrive at Rennes on Wednesday to prosecute General Mercier, who produced a document at the court martial purporting to be a report of Schneider that he has government evidence inciminating Dreyfus.

DREYFUS SPEAKS

Rennes, August 21—Captain Junck testified that Dreyfus was allowed to see papers from all bureaus because he was preparing a paper upon the difference between French and German artillery. He said the accused in this way obtained the knowledge which he treasonably communicated. When Junck concluded, Dreyfus arose pale and calm, and with his pencilled notes in his hand and speaking in an ordinary tone, controverted Junck's points one after another. He spoke for five minutes with telling effect.

GOOD ROADS MEETING TODAY.

Steps Taken to Arouse Interest for Highway Improvements.

The Guilford County Good Roads Society held a meeting in the court house today. About forty men were present to discuss the good roads question and none were there from curiosty. The meeting was called to order by President J. Van Lindley. Secretary John L King read the minutes of last meeting. Short but interesting speeches were made by Messrs E P. Wharton Prof. J. M. Bandy, J. S. Ragsdale, Mr. Rankin, Mr Groome, C.G. Wright and J. L King

It was decided that the society should have a central executive committee and also a committee in every township in the county. All literature on Good Roads will be delivered to the township committees through the secretary of the central committee. A notable fact at the meeting today was that very few of the business men of Greensboro were present. The purpose of the Good Roads Society is to arouse a sentiment in favor of a $30,000 bond issue for road improvement and every business man should not only be a member, but talk for it every day.

Love's Belief.

Love is immortal. If I die
Before you, dear, and over me
The clover blossoms wave the bee,
And little violets, sweet as shy,
Peer through the grass above my face
To smile at you when you come near
Lean down and listen—you will hear
A whisper stirring through the place.
And in that whisper you will know
The voice you loved so well of old,
Striving to tell the love untold;
And as your footsteps come and go
About your tasks the whole day through,
Love's message, whispered by the flowers,
Will fill with gladness all the hours,
For you will know I think of you.
For well I know that love would thrill
My heart of dust, if I were dead,
And you came to my grave and said,
"Dear heart, do you remember still?"
And when I felt the subtle stir
Of love that dies not, I would make
You conscious of the truth, and take
The flowers for my interpreter.

Rosenblatt, of this city, left at noon today for Reidsville to have some fun and promote the interests of Odd Fellowship. Tonight they will assist in the institution of a lodge of Odd Fellows there. THE SITUATION IS PRECARIOUS

But it is Believed that the Government will be Able to Cope with It—Itense Excitement.

By Cable to THE TELEGRAM

Paris, August 21—The city is intensely excited today over last night's riots A majority believe that the government, although it has shown weakness in dealing with Guerin and the anti-Semite conspirators in its desire to avoid bloodshed, is fully able to cope with the situation. Soldiers, gendarmes, detectives and guards are scattered everywhere A larger portion of the forces are concentrated in the districts where last night's outbreaks occurred, in consequence of which three hundred and sixty persons are in the hospitals. Eighty persons have been arrested Fifty-nine police agents are among the wounded.

THE RIOT OVER

Paris, August 21—Figaro considers the riot troubles over, that the government has decided to act with the utmost vigor against Guerin. It also says that the premier thinks there will be no further trouble in the streets of Paris.

Petit Bleu and other papers urge the government, in view of the seriousness of the situation, to reassure the provinces by hastening the proceedings for the prosecution of the case against those who are conspiring against the republic.

THE GRADYS.

A Lesson in the Moore's Creek Celebration.

We learn from the report of the celebration of Moore's Creek Bridge battle, fought on 27th February, 1776, and celebrated on the 17th August, 1899, with much demonstration, as given in the Messenger of yesterday, that the first man killed in the first war of independence in North Carolina was Private John Grady, of Duplin county. We do not know how true the statement is, but the Gradys are about as apt to fight for liberty and independence as any other family of our state. Two or three of them were killed in the second great war for independence and one, our distinguished neighbor Hon. Benjamin Franklin Grady, was wounded twice, as was his youngest brother once. Two brothers fell in battle. The point is that possibly there may have been an earlier "martyr for liberty" than John Grady. Young Wyatt, of Richmond, Va, was long held in the newspapers to be the first man killed in the war, and it was said he was a North Carolinian. He was not save by adoption. He belonged to the Edgecombe guards. We have seen it established that days before he was killed another Virginian belonging to a cavalry company was killed in a skirmish The proof is conclusive The celebration was largely attended and the address of young R. G. Grady was interesting and well received North Carolinians are too "backward in coming forward," in celebrating patriotic events in their noble history as they are too indifferent in rearing monuments to the illustrious dead. There is not another, as we believe, in the federal union of forty-seven states, that would not have a great annual celebration if they had a Mecklenburg declaration. But outside of Charlotte this great event, every way so honorable and patriotic and glowing with a liberty loving ardor that was infectious, is treated as if the other counties had no interest in the most thrilling and daring event in our history. We would like to see the 20th May, 1775, celebrated with splendid demonstrations and with annual orations by all the towns. It will be an excellent way to teach the young—these civic displays and yearly addresses. It was by celebrating every year the Fourth of July that it became known to all—Wilmington Messenger.

SILVER THE MAIN ISSUE.

That is What Colonel Bryan Said at Omaha Saturday.

Omaha, August 19—Fully 1,000 Douglass county democrats, assisted by a delegation of about 300 members of the Jeffersonian Club, of Lancaster county, turned out today to attend the Jacksonian Club picnic at Syndicate Park. The Lancaster county democrats filled a special train of six coaches. W. J. Bryan was one of the first visitors to step from the train.

At about 1 o'clock the crowd was called to order and Congressman Champ Clark, of Missouri, was introduced as the orator of the day. He received a generous reception. In the evening W. J. Bryan addressed an audience of 3,000 people. He endorsed the ideas of Congressman Clarke and reiterated his views on the silver question at length, claiming that it would be the main issue in the next presidential campaign. He endorsed the income tax, and closed with a vigorous onslaught on the trusts.

A DESERVED TRIBUTE.

Dr. Kingsbury, the cultured editor of the Wilmington Messenger, in a lengthy and a very able speculative editorial as to "the greatest North Carolinian born within the past fifty years," after learnedly discussing the various qualities of Hon. Hannis Taylor, Dr. Walter H. Page, Rev. Walter W. Moore, President Alderman and Dr. Winston, pays the following deserved tribute to the gifted citizen of Goldsboro:

There is still another man we would name of very fine natural mind, for whom the trump of fame has neither blown so loud nor so repeatedly. He is a modest man not of any of the professions of which the others are members, and his name may be quite unknown to many who may read this. He has a superior mind and if fortune had smiled upon him graciously he might have been famous ere this.

Unlike the others, he has had none of their large advantages of education. He has not had the privilege of association from boyhood with the best cultured men of his times, and has not breathed the inspiring atmosphere of the university and meditated in the sequestered vales and walks of philosophy and learning and letters. He began life poor without liberal advantages of any kind, and has all his manhood been a constant toiler, traveler, bread-winner. We have known him from boyhood, have met him often times in manhood, have watched with interest the growth and enrichment of fine faculties we early discerned, and have been delighted thereat. If he has an equal in natural gifts or in actual output from his mental mint among all the men born in a half century in North Carolina, and of like opportunities—without the training and benefits of a liberal education—without the aids that come to a gifted mind from scholastic life, and because of this necessarily limited in the range of his reading and knowledge, we have not heard of him. We can only refer to John R. Morris, the untitled, but the intellectual. He has written some brilliant articles and verse that is poetry.

There is a remarkable discrepance between Judge Clark's ideas of prosperity and those of some other gentlemen, notable among whom is Mr. T. K. Bruner, secretary of the North Carolina Agricultural Department, who tells the Raleigh correspondent of the Charlotte Observer the following: He says most excellent business conditions prevail and that fair prices prevail for products and labor; that there is an increase in the manufacturing industries, as shown in the many cotton, tobacco and furniture manufactories (especially cotton) that are finished and in course of building. The tobacco crops are fine and the method of curing the small leaves, making "twists," gives a good supply of the golden yellow crop that is so much in demand. He gives the prospective corn crop 38,000,000 to 40,000,000 bushels; wheat, not so good, the amounts 4,000,000 bushels; oats, 8,000,000 bushels; sweet potatoes, 6,000,000 bushels. The tobacco crop this year will approximate 125,000,000 pounds and cotton 350,000 bales.

It would be indeed hard to find a character more patient, fortitudinous, more beautiful, than that of Rev. John C. Troy, of the Western North Carolina conference. He has the severest of affliction, yet few men's souls are healthier than his He is an entertaining—a delightful, writer, and his contributions to the newspapers, on both secular and religious subjects, give no hint that the writer is a man of depressed spirits, but are most enlivening, the former by their irrepressible humor, the latter with good cheer and consolatory sentiment. Verily, the sick comforteth the well.

We sincerely hope that Mr. Troy may be restored to sound and vigorous health again. The life of such a man is like a sweet benediction to this sad world. May his crown, some day, over yonder, have in it many bright stars.

Booker T. Washington, who made a careful study of foreign social conditions during his recent trip abroad, says that the negroes of the South are, except so far as mobs are concerned, in a better condition than the poor of France.

THE LITERARY MAN'S ROMANCE.

Midsummer Story by a Woman Correspondent.

People say that romance is dead in these modern days of hurry and strife, but a story was told me recently that seemed to me one of the most charmingly romantic bits of genuine fancy that I had ever heard. The man who told it to me is one of the best known literary men in London. He has an assured position, and is in the fore front of every movement that is both artistic and profitable.

I was at a garden party given on the 14th of July by the Duchess of Sutherland to the council and members of the society of women journalists, of which organization she has just completed a year's term of presidency. We were seated on the lawn at Stafford House, and the Duchess, looking charmingly cool and graceful in a simple white muslin frock with a pale mauve tulle toque, was moving about among her guests with that pretty air that is so distinguishing a mark of her charm and success as a hostess.

I noticed my companion's eyes following the tall, slim figure of the Duchess with a curious expression of almost tender reverence that puzzled me. "You admire her very much?" I asked, and, still with his eyes fixed on the Duchess, he said, "I never knew who she was before, but curiously enough that woman's face has been blended with my life for the past ten or twelve years. I will tell you the story of it, and it will, I am sure, seem strangely unmodern and perhaps sentimental to you. As I tell you, I have never seen her before in the flesh, and I do not want ever to know her or to speak to her. It would spoil the illusion.

"About twelve years ago I was very poor, absolutely unknown and a total stranger in London. I had come here from the country full of ideals, but with no practical views of life, no experience and not a penny more money than would just suffice to carry me through a few weeks of very scant and meagre life. I was trying to get work, but I did not know how to go about it. I wanted to be a poet, a sort of latter-day Chatterton, I fancy. One afternoon, a foggy and miserable day in November, I was walking along Regent street. I was cold, hopeless and almost homeless.

"I could look forward to nothing, and my last manuscripts had been returned from various publishers and editors with the usual 'compliments and thanks.' I passed the windows of a well-known photographer's shop, and idly looked in, noticing the various 'professional beauties' with but scant interest. Suddenly at the back of the window I noticed one photograph, the face of a girl, a very young girl, for her features were unformed, the mouth undecided, the eyes curiously underlined and the brow, though broad and fine, having none of the firmness of maturity about it. But there was an expression about the whole childish face that mesmerized me.

"To my imagination it seemed to say, 'I must do something for the good of the world. I have a frivolous nature. I love pleasure, but I must subordinate that nature to the necessity of doing something in the world, and this feeling must always be my guiding star.' It sounds crazy, I daresay, but those eyes haunted me, and though I had very little money I went into the shop and paid five shillings for the photograph—a very huge sum to me, I can assure you, and I knew it meant going supperless to bed. I had my picture, however, and I hung it over my bed in the little garret which I called my home. And now that I am prosperous and what the world calls rich, that same picture still hangs over my bed, and I look at it more times in the day than you would possibly believe. I never knew whose face it was till today, and I now see that it belongs to this young and graceful woman of high rank and breeding, who always seems just as those girlish eyes promised, to be striving to do something to help forward and do good to as much of the world as can come within her influence."

I tried to persuade this modern knight of romance to be presented to the Duchess, but nothing would have induced him so much as to come within the sound of her voice. The whole story appealed to me as being one of such exquisite delicacy and beauty of sentiment that indeed it would have seemed almost sacrilege to destroy it by the ordinary intercourse of conventional life. The man, whose name, if I mentioned it, you would know very well, is unmarried, and he says he never will marry. Whether this determination has anything to do with the influence that has always been exercised over him by the mysterious photograph I do not know, but certain it is that he acknowledges but one personality, and her he calls his "dream woman." It is seldom, indeed, that the every-day routine of a successful literary man can spring from a source that savors a good deal of idealistic mediaevalism.—London Letter to New York Mail and Express.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadeldhia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows; "I was in a most dreadful conditien tion. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides; no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying Electric Bitters: and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents per bottle at C. E. Holton's drug store.

HOLIDAY FOR THE CIRCUS.

The Elephant Keeper's Grave At Charlotte.

In a beautiful cemetery in the quaint city of Charlotte, N. C., there is a grave covered with velvety sod, like hundreds of other graves in the cemetery, but distinguished from them all by the unique monument which adorns it. The marble shaft has carved upon it the name of the dead man and the time of his death, but upon it also is engraved a huge elephant, sculptured with striking fidelity. To the casual passerby the old sexton sometimes relates the story of the marble elephant, and tells of the touching ceremonies which take place once a year at this grave.

Every Cincinnatian remembers old Chief, the pride and terror of Robinson's circus. Chief had a long career in which he was responsible for the killing and maiming of many men, but his bones now rest beneath the grassy slopes of the zoological gardens. Many years ago Robinson's circus was paying its annual visit to Charlotte. The railroad journey or some other cause had stirred Chief's fiendish temper and when the sullen brute was let out of his car the lust for slaying was upon him. King his keeper was leaning against the side of the car. Chief's little eyes gleamed fiendishly as he saw him, but with almost human intelligence he displayed no other sign of rage. Slowly and carefully he sauntered over until he was alongside the unsuspecting keeper, and then with one vicious lunge he crushed him to a jelly against the car. Then the enraged monster cast off all restraint and started for the town trumpeting furiously and leaving wreck and ruin in his path. They picked up the crushed form of poor King, and as he heard the shrill trumpeting of Chief he gasped "turn Mary loose," and died. Mary was the mother of the herd and knew instantly what was required of her. When her chains were cast off she started in pursuit of Chief and caught up with him in the court house square. Wrapping her trunk around the handle of the town pump she tore it out and with it as a weapon belabored the now frightened Chief back to the tents.

About this time of the year the Robinson circus is turned toward the Sunny South. When they reach Charlotte the head of the show will call all his subordinates together and announce a holiday. Every one fixes up in his best, and, with the band playing Chopin's funeral march and the herd of elephants shuffling along in front, they slowly wend their way to the cemetery, where their companion sleeps the last long sleep that knows no waking. Perhaps the sculptured image of the man killing Chief and the simple services that are performed impress the dangers of their calling on them, but if so, it is only evanescent, for show people are notoriously optimistic. At all events, the monument and the annual procession to the grave are unique and touching things.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Is It Right for an Editor to Recommend Patent Medicines?

From Sylvan Valley News, Brevard N. C.

It may be a question whether the editor of a newspaper has the right to publicly recommend any of the various proprietary medicines which flood the market, yet as a preventive of suffering we feel it a duty to say a good word for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. We have known and used this remedy in our family for twenty years and have always found it reliable. In many cases a dose of this remedy would save hours of suffering while a physician is awaited. We do not believe in depending implicitly on any medicine for a cure, but we do believe that if a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy were kept on hand and administered at the inception of an attack much suffering might be avoided and in very many cases the presence of a physician would not be required. At least this has been our experience during the past twenty years. For sale by C. E. Holton, druggist.

"It's very easy," say the Manayunk Philosopher, "to see through people who persist in making spectacles of themselves."

"Our baby was sick for a month with severe cough and catarrhal fever. Although we tried many remedies she kept getting worse until we used One Minute Cough Cure—it relieved at once and cured her in a few days."—B. L. Nance, Prin. High School, Bluffdale, Texas. Howard Gardner.

"Dr De Style is at our place two or three times a week, but I never see him at your house." "No, we don't owe him anything."

A good way to keep mosquitoes from bothering you is to have a baby in the room. They seem to prefer a baby.

They are only bubbles, those maiden fancies of love, marriage and motherhood. But what beautiful bubbles they are! Who does not wish that all these fancies could end as did the old fairy stories, "and they lived happy ever after." Pain soon pricks the bubbles, and nothing remains of all the hope and gladness of the bride but a bridal veil and a piece of stale wedding cake.

The only way in which happiness can be realized in marriage is by being forearmed against its dangers. Most young women are ignorant of the fact that irregularity means a derangement of the womanly functions which may have far reaching consequences after marriage. With this derangement at the start there often follow the drains, ulcerations and inflammations which make life one long misery.

A certain cure for irregularity and other diseases peculiar to women is found in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It contains no alcohol neither opium, cocaine nor other narcotic.

"I was so weak I did not have breath to walk across my room," writes Miss Isibell Miller, of New Providence, Calloway Co., Ky. "My periods occurred too often and the hemorrhage would be prolonged and the loss of blood very excessive. I also had spells which the doctor said were fainting fits. My stomach would cramp until I could not straighten. I did not gain strength from one monthly period to another; was very weak and nervous all the time. The doctor told me he did not know what was the cause of my trouble and that I would never be any better. I lived in this way from sixteen years old to twenty-three, when the doctor dismissed my case. After this I was advised by a kind friend to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which I did and before I had taken two bottles of it I could work all day. I took in all six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and about five vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets. I used no other medicine. I have never had a return of this trouble since."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the complexion and sweeten the breath.

THE WALTZ UP TO DATE.

The Graceful Old-Time Dance Degenerating.

The waltz has long been a matter of discussion. It has had its objections in all generations, but has never lacked for patrons and champions. Well danced, to good music, by the graceful couple, it is an attractive illustration of the propriety of motion. But society is not content, even with the waltz and the dance has undergone its evolutions. The Boston dip and the glide have had their day and three steps being too slow and dignified, society has hurried the waltz into the two-step. The positions which the dancers occupy in relation to each other also undergoes its changes, until the waltz of the present day, danced to its music by an active and unconventional couple amounts almost to a catch-as-catch-can and go-as-you-please.

Time was when the dancers stood face to face, bodies not touching, and the right hand of the gentleman was held on the back of his partner, above the belt, and the left hand of the lady was placed upon the right shoulder of her partner, or his arm near the shoulder The right hand of the lady was held in the left hand of the man, either extended near the level of the waist line, or else the gentleman's left arm is bent at the elbow and his partner's hand held near his left shoulder.

But this is not up-to-date. It is too slow and conventional for fin de siecle of young America. The latest position, as we witnessed it recently, finds the man's arm not on the back of his partner, near the waist line, but further around and higher up, almost under her right arm. Then the right hand of the lady is taken in the left hand of her partner and placed upon his back collar button, while her left hand is on y a few inches distant from it upon his right shoulder. With both of her hands thus lifted to the elevation of her partner's neck and nearly surrounding it, she is then drawn forward and held firmly against the shirt front of her partner. If she is tall enough her chin goes under her partner's right shoulder, but if she is too short she is obliged to turn her face to one side and it rests upon, or from time to time, touches, the lapel of her partner's coat.

Now the purpose of this article is not to argue against the waltz. That would be wasting time even if we were disposed to do it. But we are not We are simply protesting against the mad catch-as-catch-can or go-as-you-please gallop into which the "two-step," as danced to a jig or cake-walk tune, has degenerated a once graceful and rythmical dance. The waltz is entitled to better treatment at the hands and feet of its votaries.—Augusta (Ga) Chronicle.

THE STRUGGLE IN KENTUCKY.

Contest Between the Factions Increases in Intensity.

Lexington, Ky., August 18—It has been reported that a conference would be held here today by Goebel's friends, looking toward his possible withdrawal from the race for governor, but Goebel leaders here scout the idea, declaring that Goebel will run the race out if he gets only ten voters in a precinct.

Anti-Goebelites intend now to place candidates in the field for the legislature and city and county offices where Goebel men are already announced as candidates.

Mr. A. Saunders, writing from Cocoanut Grove, Fla., says there has been quite an epidemic of diarrhoea there. He had a severe attack and was cured by four doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says he also recommended it to others and they say it is the best medicine they ever used. Remarkable Rescue

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine would cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well! now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at C. E. Holton's drug store. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

The Textile Advance.

There are indications that the textile department of the North Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical College will be started as promptly as circumstances will permit. The committee having special charge of the work and President Winston have begun an active campaign to raise funds for the building, and to secure machinery for its equipment. The textile manufacturers of North Carolina are expected to show a practical interest by contributing funds, and the manufacturers of mill machinery are supplying machinery. The time has come for North Corolina to engage to a much greater extent than at present in the manufacture of finer cotton fabrics. To accomplish this greater efficiency of operatives and and new machinery are needed. A textile school may be depended upon to supply the first, in addition to being a powerful influence for the diversication of textile operations, while mill builders will naturally, in selecting their equipment, be attracted to the machinery with which the new class of operatives and directors of mills are familiar. The textile department will thus be an object lesson of most utilitarian character. The textile schools of the two Carolinas and Georgia are a direct response to immediate demands. They mark the beginning of a most significant advance in Southern textile interests, and will have decided influence upon the development of the industry in other parts of the South.—Manufacturers' Record.

Scrofula to Consumption.

Any one predisposed to Scrofula can never be healthy and vigorous. This taint in the blood naturally drifts into Consumption. Being such a deep-seated blood disease, Swift's Specific is the only known cure for Scrofula, because it is the only remedy which can reach the disease.

Scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild when only 18 months old. Shortly after breaking out it spread rapidly all over her body. The scabs on the sores would peel off on the slightest touch, and the odor that would arise made the atmosphere of the room sickening and unbearable. The disease next attacked the eyes, and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians from the surrounding country were consulted, but could do nothing to relieve the little innocent, and gave it as their opinion that the case was hopeless and impossible to save the child's eyesight. It was then that we decided to try Swift's Specific. That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. She is now a young lady, and has never had a sign of the disease to return.

Mrs. RUTH BERKLEY, Salina, Kan.

Scrofula is an obstinate blood disease, and is beyond the reach of the average blood medicine. Swift's Specific is the only remedy equal to such deep-seated diseases; it goes down to the very foundation and forces out every taint. It is purely vegetable, and is the only blood remedy guaranteed to contain no mercury, potash or other mineral substance whatever.

One Minute Cough Cure, cures.
That is what it was made for.

ECZEMA

Itching, Burning Skin, Scales, Sores, Pimples, Red and Raw Skin, and Eruptions that Burn and Itch.

Caused by Bad Condition of the Blood. Cured by Botanic Blood Balm (B.B.B.).

Sample Bottle sent Free.

If you have tried doctors, salves, washes, external and internal remedies, and still have Eczema, Tetter, Scald Head, Salt Rheum, then B.B.B. will cure you by literally driving the bad poisoned blood out of the body, bones, and entire system, and this is the only perfect cure. Other remedies fail to cure because they fail to drive the bad blood out. B.B.B. is an internal powerful blood remedy that is meant to, and does, cure after all else fails.

HAVE YOU itching, burning, scaly, crusted, or pimply skin, blisters containing pus or watery fluid, skin red, and an itching heat, with or without sores, on legs, arms, hands, neck, or face? Then take B.B.B. which will cure you, leaving the flesh free from blemishes, sores, or itching of any kind.

Chronic Eczema is a severe form of skin inflammation, with great redness and a raw surface. It may last for years with intervals of partial recovery, but easily returning. It often attacks the ears and neck. We have seen the ears burnt and crisped as a piece of roast meat, and the whole side of the neck a surface of raw, inflamed flesh, pitiable to behold. We know of six cases like this cured by B.B.B. during the past year (1898).

Any form of Eczema is due to diseased blood. Get the diseased blood out with B.B.B., and you are cured. B.B.B. is perfectly safe to take by old or young, and acts as a fine tonic.

Eczema on Children. When teething, children are very frequently afflicted with Eczema. Sores discharge, and a yellow crust forms upon the skin. Give the child mild doses of B.B.B., and the sores will soon heal.

Sample Bottle Free. Send 2 stamps for free sample bottle, and book. B.B.B. for sale everywhere. Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga.

ANNUAL MEETING

Of the Industrial and Immigration Association.

Greensboro, N. C., Aug. 14, '99.

The postponed annual meeting of the Industrial and Immigration Association will be held at the court house on Monday night, August 21, at 8:30. The regular time for this meeting coming as it did in the midst of preparations for gala week, it was deemed wise to postpone until after the festivities of that occasion were over that we might have a full meeting of the members of this association and its friends. It is desired by the management to render a full and complete account of their stewardship. New officers will be elected at this meeting, and everyone interested in the growth and development of Greensboro should attend and use his best judgment in selecting such men as are in a position to use their time, money and influence in developing the city's manufacturing interests.

We would advise that Mr. M. V. Richards, land and industrial agent of the Southern Railway, formerly occupying the same position with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and one of the highest authorities on industrial progress in the United States, has consented to be present at this meeting and deliver the address of the evening.

Please let the association have your cooperation in making this meeting a success and in laying plans that will greatly increase its usefulness during the next year.

W. M. Barber, Secretary. J. S. Hunter, President.

A Vote of Thanks.

At a meeting of the Greensboro hook and ladder company No. 1 on last Thursday night a unanimous vote of thanks was given the ladies who worked so hard and faithfully in getting up their lawn party and in decorating their float and truck Surely no company ever had better friends in so great a time of need. To say that the young men appreciate the help of these ladies is to put it mildly. To a man they stand ready at all times and under all circumstances to do them a service whenever the call is given.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures dyspepsia because its ingredients are such that it can't help doing so. "The public can rely upon it as a master remedy for all disorders arising from imperfect digestion" — James M. Thomas, M. D.; in American Journal of Health, N. Y. Howard Gardner.

Puts Calls

Hard Labor.

The work of cutting away the hill on lower South Elm is progressing nicely considering the small force employed, and Prof. Bandy will most probably complete it in the time he first estimated on. The soil from the top of the hill has been carried to the bottom at a rapid rate, and three rows of 20 inch terra cotta piping have been put in at the bottom to provide drainage.

The arduous task of lowering the water main on the hill will be delayed until the middle of the street is made passable.

There'll be rich choosing for all who come, but the old story of the early bird can be aptly applied at our store. Fishblate-Katz Co.
